National Education Union (NEU) industrial action

Dear Parents and Carers,

On Wednesday 1st February 2023, the National Education Union (NEU) is taking industrial action. I write to inform you that, on that day, Llanidloes High School will remain open to all pupils and staff.

Our decision to remain open has been taken after carrying out a thorough risk assessment.

Will my child's transport run as normal?

Yes, all transport routes will run as normal during the planned industrial action.

Will my child's timetable be affected?

We expect most pupils' timetables to be unaffected.

Does this mean the school will be open during future strikes?

Not necessarily. Before every strike, we must update our risk assessment and decide whether it is safe to open the school. The National Education Union have notified Powys County Council of strike action on 1st and 14th February and the 15th and 16th March 2023. I will write to you soon to explain our arrangements on 14th February.

And finally...

For the avoidance of doubt, the NEU's dispute is with the Secretary of State for Education, not with our school. If you have any further questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Your sincerely,

Daniel Owen (Headteacher)
